

ANTH 150B1

MANY WAYS OF BEING HUMAN

Summer Session II – Online course

How do people create, use and interpret cultural “scripts”? How are gender and race constructed in social practice? What counts as knowledge? In considering these and related questions, this course will investigate several themes that reflect some of the major concerns of anthropology -- social and economic class, gender, race, ritual, and knowledge systems -- while exploring the ways in which these concerns have been challenged and rethought by anthropologists.

Class
Race/Ethnicity
Gender
Ritual
Language

—————
Knowledge systems

—————
Religion

—————
Counts as a Tier 1
Gen Ed

—————
Fully online!

WANT MORE INFORMATION?

Instructor: William Cotter

Email:
williamcotter@email.
arizona.edu