This course takes an explicitly global perspective to exploring some important events in the history of humankind. We will examine the following topics: archaeological methods, becoming human, the search for food, migration and exploration, food production, the rise of the state, food and culture, origins of religion, and the modern world. The main goal of this course is that students gain an understanding of past societies and how the past influences and shapes the present and our own society.