Siona was awarded a Fulbright Fellowship in 2010-11 for an art project titled “Faces: Weaving Indian Jewish Narratives.” The first exhibit for the India Fulbright was in 2013 at the Prince of Wales museum in Mumbai and several others followed. Siona received a second Fulbright fellowship in 2016-17 to Israel, and her project was titled “From Motherland to Fatherland: Transcultural Indian Jews in Israel.”

A documentary on her work was made by film maker Hal Rifken in 2015 and is now available on Amazon.com titled “Blue Like Me: The Art of Siona Benjamin.”
